

14 November, 2012
Mindol Metta Karuna
Siem Reap

Dear Friends,

This is a warm invitation to join a three day INTER-FAITH Reflection that leads to Action for Justice and Reconciliation.

When: 12 December - 14 December 2012
(Optional evening gathering 6pm 11 December)

Where: Metta Karuna Reflection Siem Reap

What: An Inter Faith Conversation
Metta Karuna /Justice /Reconciliation

Based on Experience
Drawing on different Faith Traditions
Leading to action for a Just and Peaceful Cambodia.

Buddhist monks, Christians, Muslims, people who desire Justice and Peace will plan together collaborative non-violent ways
to address current challenges in Cambodia.

The people invited are those who love Cambodia and its people deeply. We recognize that since the horror days of the killing fields Cambodia has made some beautiful steps to peace, reconciliation and justice. We all know though that this is a long journey and more needs to happen so that Cambodia is truly part of the just and peaceful world desired by all faith traditions.

So you are invited to be part of a reflection process which:

First:

Listen to stories of people who:

- have been injured by war*
- have been displaced from land or home or country*
- have been effects of environmental*

Second:

Draw on wisdom of Buddhism, Islam, Christianity, literature to decide how to act.

Third:

Find ways to act together and individually to help Justice and Peace grow more deeply in Cambodia.

We will, at all times, be constructive, respectful of all faiths and motivated by compassion and wisdom.

You are invited to stay in our peaceful Metta Karuna centre. The accommodation is simple, the meals good and the grounds help contemplation and community. Some may prefer to stay outside in a Pagoda or guest house. You will need to arrange this yourself.

A draft programme is attached.
